Introduction

As the Web has become a major source of information, techniques and methodologies to extract quality information is of paramount importance for many Web applications and users. Big Data mining and knowledge discovery play key roles in many Web applications, such as e-commerce and computer security.

Scope and Interests

Following the success of MAW08 in Okinawa, MAW09 in Bradford, MAW10 in Perth, MAW11 in Singapore, MAW12 in Fukuoka, MAW13 in Barcelona, MAW14 in Victoria, MAW15 in Gwangju, MAW16, MAW17 in Taiwan, and MAW18 in Krakow, MAW19 aims to bring together scientists, engineers, and practitioners to discuss, exchange ideas, and present their research on mining the Web. Topics of interest that MAW18 covers include general mining techniques and methodologies, as well as their application to the Web (but are not limited to):

- Text, Data, and Media Mining
- Natural Language Processing
- Information Retrieval and Knowledge Discovery
- Social Networks and On-Line Communities
- Information Categorisation, Clustering, and Fusion
- Web Search, Ranking and Optimisation
- Collaborative Filtering, Personalisation and Recommender
- Semantic Web and Ontology
- Cyber Security, Privacy, and Trust
- e-Technology, e-Government, and e-Learning
- Wikis and Blogs Mining
- Web and Business Intelligence
- Web Evolution and Analytics
- Big Data mining and management

Submission Information

Original full paper of at most 6 (six) pages including figures and references in PDF (Conference Proceedings Style: two columns, single-spaced, 10 fonts) should be submitted through <http://www.ece.uvic.ca/~kinli/MAW19> Submission of a paper should be regarded as a commitment that, if the paper is accepted, at least one of the authors will register and present at the conference. Accepted papers will be included in the conference proceedings and submitted to Xplore and CSDL.
